ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Christopher Huffine, Psy.D., is a licensed psychologist who has worked in the domestic violence field for over 28 years. In that time, he has worked with over a thousand abusive men, dozens of abused women, and a number of non-aggressive male victims of domestic violence. He founded Allies in Change Counseling Center in September of 2004. He presently co-facilitates three groups a week for abusive men. He is a member of the advisory group to the state Attorney General to establish batterer intervention standards in the state of Oregon, as well as the Oregon Domestic Violence Fatality Review Team. He regularly speaks about domestic violence and abusive men.

ABOUT ALLIES IN CHANGE

Allies in Change is a non-profit mental health agency and social activist organization with three locations in the Portland tri-county area.

We offer 26 weekly abuse intervention groups to help perpetrators of domestic violence recognize and address issues of power and control and cease continued abusive behavior. Some of our groups are specialized for men who are emotionally intense, abusive fathers, criminally or psychopathically orientated, or voluntarily seeking help with abusive behaviors. We also offer groups for women dealing with anger and abuse perpetration.

Additionally, our staff volunteers time to participate in speaking engagements on issues relating to domestic violence in order to further community involvement and awareness. Beyond our domestic violence work, we offer individual and couples counseling to men and women with focus areas including depression, anxiety, managing emotions, and improving interpersonal relationships.
